Write a letter to the editor about the car accident in about 50 words. when

Dear Editor,

There was a car accident this morning. I was crossing the zebra road, when a woman shouted, 'Be careful!' A car was coming while we were crossing the road. Luckily, the car stopped and we were safe. I learnt that we should look at the roads and make sure the cars stop before we cross the road.

Yours,
Kylie

Bella and Tommy's Hard Lesson

Last Saturday, Bella and Tommy were playing happily with their toys at home. They were so carried away by their excitement that they played noisily, leaving a chaotic trail of toys scattered all over the living room floor. Unfortunately, they were too distracted to notice their mother walking in. Disaster struck when she tripped over a stray toy and stumbled forward. Toys flew everywhere, and Mum glared at the messy room, her face flushed with anger.

She strictly ordered Bella and Tommy to clean up the mess and put every single toy back into the toy box. However, instead of cooperating, the siblings immediately started bickering. Tommy yelled angrily, "You do it!" Bella snapped back just as sharply, "No, you should!" As their argument grew louder, Mum watched them with a furious look, her patience wearing thin.

Eventually, realizing they were completely in the wrong, Bella and Tommy stopped fighting. They exchanged guilty glances and finally decided to clean up together. Working as a team, they picked up the blocks, dolls, and toy cars, putting them back into their respective boxes one by one. Once the room was completely tidy, they walked over to Mum and sincerely apologized. Seeing their effort, Mum smiled warmly and praised them for doing a fantastic job.

How should we behave in public places?

It is highly important to behave properly in public places. Having good manners shows respect for others and makes our community a better place.

When dining in a restaurant, we should always speak politely to the staff. It is also essential to wait patiently for our food to arrive instead of complaining.

Similarly, when travelling on the MTR, passengers ought to keep their voices down when talking on the phone. To show kindness, we should always offer our seats to those in need, such as the elderly or pregnant women. Moreover, to keep the compartments clean and tidy, eating, drinking, and littering are strictly prohibited.

When visiting a park, we should respect nature. This means we should avoid stepping on the grass or feeding the birds. Unless permitted, riding bicycles and bringing pets should also be avoided so that everyone can enjoy a safe environment.

In conclusion, having good manners in public is a basic civic duty. By behaving well and being considerate, we can create a harmonious society for everyone.

Surprise at the Cinema

Last Friday, Anna and her dad went to the cinema to watch a movie. Since they arrived early, they had to join a long queue to buy their tickets. Anna was buzzing with excitement, eagerly looking forward to the film.

While they were waiting in line, Anna noticed a bright balloon on the ground. Not far away, a little boy was crying uncontrollably. Pointing toward him, Anna asked her dad, "Whose balloon is that? The boy in the blue T-shirt looks so upset. Do you think it belongs to him?" Her dad looked at the boy sympathetically and replied, "Maybe it does. Let's go and check."

Anna quickly picked up the balloon, ran over to the boy, and handed it to him with a warm smile. "Here you go! Don't cry anymore," she said gently. The little boy stopped crying immediately, wiped his tears, and thanked her with a bright smile.

In the end, Anna invited the boy to watch the film with them. They sat together, shared a giant bucket of popcorn, and laughed throughout the movie. They all felt incredibly happy because it turned out to be a wonderful afternoon.

Mum's Birthday Party

Today was Sam's mum's birthday. To celebrate the special occasion, Sam and his sister decided to throw a surprise birthday party for her. They carefully prepared a to-do list with four important tasks to complete.

Sam went out to do some shopping. While he was out, his sister called him and asked, "Have you bought the snacks and drinks yet?" Sam replied, "Yes, I've just gotten them from the supermarket. Have you tidied up the living room and written the birthday card?" His sister answered excitedly, "Yes, I've already cleaned the room and finished the card!" Meanwhile, their dad bought a wonderful birthday gift for Mum.

When their mum arrived home at seven o'clock, the party began. However, right as they started celebrating, Sam's sister suddenly asked, "Where is the birthday cake?" Sam gasped in shock, "Oh no! I completely forgot to buy it. I'm so sorry!"

Fortunately, Dad quickly saved the day by ordering a cake online. In the end, they happily sang the birthday song together and cut the delicious cake. Despite the little hiccup, everyone had a fantastic time. What an unforgettable birthday it was!

My choice for transportation in Hong Kong

Hong Kong is a busy and crowded city with many ways to travel around. The top three common means of transport are bus, MTR and minibus. For me, I personally prefer travelling by bus, MTR or taxi.

I love travelling by bus because it's cheap. Although travelling by bus is cheap, it's slow. Sometimes there is traffic jam and it's a little bit crowded but it's OK for me.

I enjoy travelling by MTR because it's fast. Travelling by MTR is fast but it's often crowded. I like being fast so I enjoy travelling by MTR. Besides, MTR cars are air-conditioned so people can enjoy the cool air.

I like travelling by minibus even though it is untidy and dirty sometimes. Although travelling by minibus is sometimes dirty, it can navigate narrow streets that larger bus can't reach. I can always get a seat when travelling by minibus but the legroom and aisle space are often tight, reducing passenger comfort on longer journeys.

In conclusion, I prefer travelling by bus because it is my favourite transportation and it has many advantages!

A piece of news I will never forget

Last Sunday, I heard a news report about a robbery in a stop watch shop in Cheung Sha Wan when I was asking the staff how much a watch was. I was scared. I hoped I could become a policewoman to catch the robbers and save people.

On Sunday afternoon, four robbers rushed in with masks, guns and knives. They asked every one to stand still. Customers screamed and ran out of the shop. Then the robbers hit the glass and took a lot of watches. The shop manager pressed the silent alarm. The shopkeepers huddled behind the chairs. They were so scared and helpless.

Meanwhile, the robbers were escaping when the policemen arrived. The police caught them and one of them escaped but the police found him and caught him later. I felt very proud.

In the end, all of the robbers got caught. Customers cried with relief and joy. I felt over the moon. I learned to stay calm and tell every one to hide when the robbers came in.
